You don't want to simply say, Thank you for the gift. That may give the impression that you can't remember what the person gave you. Even if you didn't care for the gift, you should send a thank you note. State how the gift or service will be, or has been, used. Wrap it up with a personal comment. Send your thank you note as soon as possible.

Thank You Notes To Send or Not To Send The Emily Post

Thank-you notes should be written as soon as the patient feels well enough or a friend or relative can write the notes to acknowledge the gifts. It's also okay to call or email close friends rather than write. The important point is to be sure the gift is acknowledged in a timely fashion, not to create a burden for the person who is ill or recovering.
